EUCLIDIAN
Euclid is America in focus. Through 150 years of development, it stands as a symbol of democracy in action. The city in this United States finds its force in its people; its strength is limited to their strength, its aggressiveness is determined by the extent of their aggressiveness. The people represent the nucleus of community structure.

Euclid High School is an integral part of our community, for its students are a cross-section of American youth today. Ten years of growth lie behind Euclid High's excellent plan of education, and the promise of continued progression is certain.

Although all such institutions of education across the country center their programs on the basics of learning, each school stands as an individual working force. This is Euclid Senior High School, as shown in . . .
There is a living spirit at Euclid High which becomes instilled in the hearts of students, faculty, and administrators. Each lesson learned, each experience gained is a tributary from this consisent spirit. Emphasis is placed on the individual and his contribution to the precision of perfected teamwork. Above learning to live and work with others, the Euclid student learns to live and work with himself, in a manner that is not egocentric, but which helps him get to know himself, his capabilities, and his limitations. Knowing himself, he consequently recognizes how he can do his best in the competitive society he is soon to face.

The student learns confidence, poise, and self-trust through his life at Euclid High. Realizing that this stems from the spirit of his school, he takes pride in this, his school...
Hail to Thee, O Euclid High School,
To thy name all praise we sing.
Happy days of youthful pleasure;
Learning, living, life so dear.
Our hearts fill with gratitude
For all that is to be—
Alma Mater, Euclid High School,
All our praise we bring to thee.

Where the blue of Erie's waters
Casts the sun's bright golden rays,
There all Euclid's sons and daughters
Sing the joys of student days.
If after days be dark and drear
And storms of life draw nigh,
The memories of our friendships here
Will lift our hearts to Euclid High.
Realizing that the school is based on intangible spirit, the structure itself must now be added to this foundation to bring the true picture of Euclid Senior High into focus. From the many active forces of our community contributing to E.H.S., we have gathered the opinions of some of the citizens of our city about what they feel our school actually is. These are the people of our community; the voice of democratic America...
Euclid’s 150th Year . . .

P.T.A. REPRESENTATIVES:
A school—a good school—must satisfy the needs of the whole student. The administrators and teachers supply the greatest need—feeding him knowledge from text books, from their experiences, from the immortal works of great authors. This supplies the needs of the mind, but this is not the whole child.

The athletic program at school supplies another need—that of giving the student a clean healthy respect for his body. This again is not the whole child.

The third and equally important part in the development of this child is making friends and the sense of well-being from being accepted by his classmates. In a way, this is a need of the soul. We like to think the Student Center contributes to this last need. Here he meets his friends on an equal basis. Poor grades, school records, class competition, are left outside the doors and he can relax in an atmosphere of friendliness.

This, as we see it, completes the development of the whole child. This is the function of a school—a good school. As P.T.A. members, our experience shows us that Euclid is such a school.
It is the function of Euclid Senior High School to educate the student, according to his individual needs and differences, in the esthetic as well as in the utilitarian areas of endeavor, so that he can make a living, participate in our democratic process and help preserve our country’s heritage. The student must be highly educated scientifically, industrially, and economically in order to assure continued American prosperity and security. It is the responsibility of the school to maintain sufficient balance between emphasis on these endeavors and the esthetic appreciations to assure a sensitivity to the constant need for interpretation of our technical advances, for it is only insofar as these technical advances can be made to serve the interests of humanity that they are worthy of the effort exerted in their development.

STUDENTS:
The main purpose for Euclid High School's existence is education: education to provide knowledge of facts, and education to provide knowledge of self. But a high school is more than just a building in which formal education takes place. It is an institution in which to progress and regress, to win and lose, to govern and be governed. More even than this, it is designed to show us the pathway to a fuller life.

INDUSTRIAL WORKERS:
Education is predominant in high school life. Euclid High provides the climate necessary for a student's development, emphasizing the importance of getting along well with others. As have our homes, our schools have improved. As workers, we recognize the excellence of Euclid's auto and machine shops. Having faith in their teachers, we of the community are proud of our students and are willing to support their endeavors.

Citizens Express Opinion of Euclid
CLERGYMEN:

Interpersonal relationships are vital. Education—the discipline of the mind—is a primary concern of a high school, but concern for fellow men—the development of values concerning the individual, his worth and uniqueness—should be the central element: for many different people in combination make Euclid High School and the world. A new concept of respect and integrity—not yet reached but vital to success in life—should be taught.

There has been much progress in the last century and a half. Certainly no one wants a regression to the little red schoolhouse of pioneer days. With growth, however, there is generally a need for pruning. In education, too, there can be rank growth. Too many overlapping social organizations may give a false sense of value. But the pruning goes on—eliminating, adding, correcting, and reshaping.

The development of the individual—unique, not conformed; educated and motivated, not enslaved nor manipulated—this is the greatest duty of the high school.

This is the voice of the people speaking about Euclid Senior High. With this introduction as a background, the 1959 Euclidian presents the actual picture of our school. Various phases are necessary for a well-rounded education, and E.H.S. has them all. Our school is friendship, recreation, and learning. Of course the true test of the value of these phases is found in the student's application, upon graduation, of what he has learned. Euclid High, as you will see, prepares him well. To reveal for your appreciation of a fine educational system, we present Euclid Senior High School. It is . . .
FRIENDSHIP
Our lives are full when they are enriched by our associations with others. As human beings, we all have various needs, a universal one being that of companionship. No matter how strong our wills, or independent our natures, we are all reliant upon sincere friendships. Whether it is light and casual, or deep and loving, we all share a special feeling with certain people. Companionship was a part of Euclid High; our school was friendships...
Leading the Class of '60...
Seniors; the final step in twelve long years of education. A unique sense of responsibility met us at the door September 3, 1958, and welcomed us in as the respected guides and examples to underclassmen. Senior pride was only an outward expression of deep devotion to principles and anxiety to progress. Throughout the year we worked collectively and individually to draw Euclid High closer together so that every student would share the feelings that make high school a private society. As Seniors, we alone experienced the satisfaction of a mission completed while already facing another more important one not yet begun. Within each of us, we hold our own particular memories that will always be treasured as a vital phase of our individual Senior careers. But united or alone, our year was special, our year was uniquely ours, and the high-point of our love is the very pride we feel to be members of the Class of 1959.

Mrs. Stewart
Juniors served as apprentices in the training for successful high school graduates this year, and proved beyond a doubt the extent of their capabilities. Standing unshadowed by the glory of Seniors, these ambitious students were examples of the fact that the Junior year was not to be underestimated as merely a preparation for the superior class at Euclid High. Making wise use of their experiences and lessons as Sophomores, they worked diligently to fully benefit in their position as middlemen. Being the right hand in many of Euclid's functions, they backed their school united as well as their class alone.

This intelligent pattern of conduct gave Euclid High much in their Juniors of which to be proud, and the pleasure of a promising future with the Class of 1960.

Friends were by our side this year, a living phase of our school life. Casual acquaintances had the value of interest and companionship. Deep friendships bore the gift of love, and were precious in their rich existence. With them we shared a special feeling, for above all we had the assurance of knowing that they were always there, and, for those graduating, that they will always remain there. We went to these friends and they came to us at all times, during moments of joy and dark spells of sadness. We talked with them, worked with them, went to movies, games, and pizza palaces with them; we laughed with them, we cried with them. We shared, and this was the essence of our friendships at Euclid; we shared in...
RECREATION . . .
The recreation program at Euclid High is at a wisely-established level of near-perfection. Neither over-emphasized nor under-emphasized, the administrators of our school have strived to raise our activity program to its proper place, and to keep it there, allowing for natural growth. As students this year, we enthusiastically took part in this phase of our school, both through student social life and athletics. We realized what Euclid offered us in the way of constructive recreation...
The large lounge was a restful haven after a busy day.

“E” for Elegance, Easy Relaxation . . .

Our spacious Panther Bar. Say, look out Mrs. Graafmeyer!
The peaceful comfort of the small lounge attracted many a tired Euclidite.

Outdoor atmosphere of the patio was brisk at this time, but Spring promised a refreshing change.

The long delay in the opening of the Social Center had a positive effect on the students of Euclid High as all shared a deeper sense of pride and appreciation in the good fortune that was theirs. During the 1958 Home-coming week-end, the doors were at last opened, revealing to students, faculty, administrators, and citizens the beautiful product of many hours of planning and labor. The students of Euclid for the past three years have played an integral part in the completion of this fantastic project, and their gratitude for the opportunity was and always will be inexpressible.

This attractive, inviting area was kept humming at noontime, after school, and during weekends, as Euclid students rushed at the chance to utilize their privilege of having such a wonderful center. Their maturity in conducting themselves exemplified the spirit and pride which they take in their new found possession.
Our spacious ballroom had the perfect atmosphere for all occasions.
Our E-Room provided an atmosphere for all moods during lunch periods and after school. For those wishing to dance to the latest hits, or sit over a milk shake while having a lively discussion with friends, the Panther Bar area was a perfect invitation. The student who longed to find a peaceful spot where he could get away from the hectic pressure of school life was attracted to the restfulness of the lounges. Here he could listen to the traces of music that drifted from the soda bar, and yet relax quietly either with friends or alone. The huge ballroom was reserved for dances and other important occasions and the outdoor patio promised to add a touch of the beauty of nature when spring arrived. Words could scarcely describe the splendor of our social center.

The Panther Bar area was a sweet-shop, ballroom, gab-fest room, and game room all wrapped into one.

The small lounge was relaxing, yet lively with its plants and blue and gold cushions.
Euclid Panthers on the drive.

"One-for-the-Panthers" Became 6,700 . . .

Dads intent on sons being victorious.
Spirit ran high and intense as students ushered in the 1958 football season. The Buy-one-for-the-Panthers campaign was its usual success, as Euclid citizens showed their profound interest in the welfare of their school and its athletic program. Our team had a slow start at the scoreless St. Joe’s Preview game, but the pep parades proved to all that we were behind the fellas in victory or defeat. Faithful Euclidites got the Panthers rolling on another exciting sports season.
Football Fans Prove Faithful Followers . . .

Spirit! The entire school was enveloped in it this year as the crisp, autumn winds whipped around the goal posts and the mighty Euclid Panthers embarked on another football season. The gridiron action seemed to instill a new pride in the heart of every student and citizen, for no matter what the weather man predicted the Euclid stands always boasted a standing-room-only crowd. Self-sacrificing Panthers who gave up a night of cheering were the Ad Club members selling tickets, and the concession workers providing red-faced fans with steaming cups of coffee and cocoa.

Whether the game was in our own stadium or was reached by the exciting, rumbling trip in a chartered bus, Euclid students could always be found returning home with husky throats after the night's adventure. Pride in the team, in victory or defeat, was just one small sign of Euclid's intangible spirit. Truly, 'No one could be prouder.'
Chipping in.

And no one could be prouder.
"C'mon! Everybody's going to the bonfire!" was the cry of the faithful Panther followers as they tramped across the fields, still wet from the afternoon's rain, on their way to the bonfire. Songs . . . cheers . . . spirit at an intense pitch, and another Homecoming week-end was officially begun. Shouts of victory echoed through the night and sparks of spirit leaped into the crisp autumn air as enthusiasm reached its peak.

The majorettes twirled and danced to the stirring music of the Pep Band, radiant Homecoming nominees were introduced, and the red and white Shaker dummy was hurled atop the glowing embers. With happy faces, the untiring cheerleaders led the crowd in the victory yell as the coals burned lower and lower. The fans strained at the ropes as anticipation rose in time with the rhythm of the fight song. Then it was out of the ring for a final burst of spirit led by the band, cheerleaders, and majorettes as they headed the traditional "snake dance" in front of the stadium. From far away, a climax of excited shouts could be heard diminishing as the once-reddened sky gave way again to blackness. As the last ember smoldered, the Panther fans, with hopes for a victory as high as the sparks that had licked the cool night air, soon realized that the bonfire was just a preview of good times to follow.
Where'd the band go?

The fire of spirit burned in the heart of every Panther.

Blaze Sparks Homecoming Spirit . . .

The flames search out the headless dummy.
The destruction of hours of work caused by the incessant rain brought some tears which just couldn't be held back.

Floats Float in

The memories of building our homecoming floats will be treasured.

"Help! It's leaking!" "Watch out! It's going to fall!"

These and many other similar cries of distress rang through the rain and cold as the 1958 Homecoming floats assembled outside the stadium before the game. Despite all obstacles, some of the floats were preserved well enough to participate in the half-time parade. Valiantly they displayed the blue and gold—faded from rain—and sadly but proudly disintegrating masterpieces traced a path around the field and past the judges.

The winning floats really deserved the credit given them, for they had survived all perils and had come through carrying their themes which reflected the spirit that was everywhere present, despite Mother Nature's attempts at drowning.

Star-studded

One of the most highly anticipated nights of the 1958-59 school year was that of the gala Homecoming Dance, highlighting the weekend full of tradition and spirit. Held in the new E-Room, this was one of the most successful celebrations of its kind ever sponsored at E.H.S.

Climaxing the festive, never-to-be-forgotten evening were the crowning of the Homecoming Queen and the installation of her four attendants. The radiant smiles on their faces and the sparkling tears in their eyes were reflected in every face that lined the royal pathway. The joy of all attending brought a fitting conclusion to this glorious affair.

Student life in the E-Room was relaxing and enjoyable.

This is our social life in all its phases—relaxation, recreation, work, and play—directed and on our own.

But student life is by no means limited to the social functions of our school. It entails also active participation in competition. Cross country, football, swimming, basketball, wrestling, baseball, track and other sports became a most integral part of high school life. With the challenge of academics, some faced the challenge of competitive sports. Many Euclidites, both boys and girls, found extreme enjoyment in the physical arts. Each discovered his latent abilities and, through practice, encouraged their development and improvement. This was his social life as a student, and to him its importance could not be disregarded without insult to the benefits of athletic competition. As an active participant, it was easy for him to recognize these favorable characteristics, and he worked to relay this fact to others. Success was his, for sports this year were respectfully regarded as an important phase of student life.

Interesting and unusual entertainment came at half time from the band.
Student Life Closely Associated With Athletics . . .

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM

One sport to which very little attention is given—but which is deserving of a great deal—is cross country. The boys on this team were diligent, strong workers—having to be in order to survive the strain of their rigorous training program. A two mile run was a commonplace practice for these ambitious boys, and their excellent training was made apparent every time they appeared in a meet.

With their star, Bill Lewin, capturing first place almost every time he ran, the harriers achieved a remarkable 14-2 record, took the Lake Erie League Championship for the third consecutive year, first place in the District Meet, third in the Bowling Green Relays, and sixth in the State Meet.

Everywhere they ran, they displayed the spirit and drive that have made them a first-rate team.

It was all in the game for the men of the gridiron this year as the Panthers enjoyed the spine-tingling, infectious excitement that is so characteristic of football at Euclid. Although the record stands as a point by point account of the team’s success, there is no measuring device for the valuable experience gained by these enthusiastic athletes. With sportsmanship behind them, as a lesson in itself, the boys worked diligently to create a good name for their school and widespread pride for its athletic prowess. The training program to which they were subjected was not limited to physical growth and improvement, but also to the strict conditioning of principles so vital to the success of a sportsman. Throughout the entire season the players stood as examples to the citizens of Euclid, examples of sports that have sacrificed no exciting flavor while remaining clean-cut.

The 1958 football season furthered friendship, recreation, and learning for all concerned.

Football . . . High-pitched Action

An important step up from junior high football, the Junior Varsity played proudly and diligently in the name of Euclid Senior High School during the 1958 season. Although the boys carried high hopes of continuing on to varsity ball, they nevertheless worked all season with a faithful attitude toward the advantages of their own league. The excellent training and coaching they received formed a stable base for their untiring efforts to improve their own abilities and thereby further the standing of their team.

The J. V. men learned that the intangible power transmitted by the shouts of faithful supporters was a strong incentive to fight their hardest for victory. But when the verdict was defeat, they displayed maturity and deep-rooted sportsmanship by accepting it in a manner that was admirable both on and off the field.

Whether or not their football careers end now, or continue into varsity or even college competition, Euclid's J. V.'ers can chalk up an education in the 1958 football season.

5th—Euclid Relays
4th—Lake Erie League

Although the Panther mermen did not have a winning season, they managed to hold their own with a 5-7 record. Even though they failed to capture meet honors, they broke—and re-established—twelve school records; and defeated, for the first time in Euclid's history, the Shaker Heights team by a score of 46-40.

These feats, and the skill with which they were accomplished, were the results of the long hours of practice put in by the swim team from November through March. Euclid saw many aching—but willing—backs!

The junior members of this year's team have gained much applicable know-how, and are sure to put E.H.S. on top in the 1960 season.

Ours was the team that, with its drive and spirit, made Euclid proud through its display of talented ability.

Dribble and Drive to Victory ...

The 8-10 record appeared rather disheartening, yet Euclid fans realized that it didn't tell the whole story. For behind this record stood an array of heartbreakingly close games: won or lost by only two or three points.

Despite these scores, which would have discouraged many another group, Euclid students displayed the spirit so typical of them and faithfully backed the team through the last second of playing time.

The team members fully justified the faith and enthusiasm placed in them by the student body by pouring forth all the effort of which they were capable. Though often it appeared that this was not quite enough, the boys always exemplified the highest ideals of sportsmanship and spirit.

Lake Erie League Champions

Sparked by Coach Eckert's drive and captain Don Schonauer's spirit, the Panthers trounced their eight dual meet opponents in turn. The tense, exciting meets drew crowds of fans as the Panthers battled to retain their supremacy. Capturing their third consecutive Lake Erie League mat crown, the Panthers remained undefeated in L.E.L. competition. The matmen battled on to qualify eight in the district tournament and retain their district title. Sending six boys to State, the Panthers found themselves ninth in competition when the dust settled. Three of the wrestlers—Jerry Eisman, Rich Hunter, Ron Watson—took fourth places to close the Panthers' successful mat season.

Although losing four lettermen to graduation, Coach Eckert's hopes for the future rest with the remaining seven junior lettermen: co-captains Roger Brown and Chuck Schlegel, Pat Check, Tom Gortz, Bill Risher, Ron Patrick, and Bob Condon. Outstanding sophomores Ed Orazen and Steve Gebe, and the other graduates of the undefeated Junior Varsity will round out the squad. Thus almost fifty wrestlers with mat experience will be battling for varsity positions.
"Cheers" was the ringing cry in the stadium and the gymnasium, but no true Panther would swallow any Euclid Spirit! Instead the shouts of encouragement would pour out under the snapping directions of the Varsity Cheerleaders. This energetic group of girls had such ability in leading yells for victory that they made the glorious sound bounce from wall to wall with spine-tingling excitement. Spirit sprang from their determined cartwheels, jumps, and flips, and originality was just as obviously expressed in the creation of many new cheers.

The sincerity and true desire for Panther pride and victory on the part of the girls can easily be observed through their efforts to promote school spirit in all phases of Euclid life, both on and off the athletic fields. This all-round "spirit-leading" is a tremendous addition to Euclid High.
Euclid's Cheers...

JUNIOR VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

Equally ambitious as the varsity cheerleaders, Euclid's J.V. girls worked with the same devotion for the promotion of that so valuable intangible quality—school spirit. Because they were not chosen until the beginning of the first semester, the girls had to spend twice as much time perfecting their skills, for perfection was their goal. Creating the high school spirit in newly-welcomed Sophomores is a tremendous responsibility, but the J. V. Cheerleaders took it in stride and seriously dedicated their efforts to making the "Frosh" of E. H. S. a highly spirited class. Certainly nothing was in vain, for the Sophomore class proved to be a strong link in Euclid's chain of student pride.

GIRLS’ LEADERS CLUB

A group of ambitious, athletically inclined girls, the Girls’ Leaders Club passed through many phases of personal development while making physical education class an enjoyable one. Under the fine direction of their sponsor, Mrs. Fox, the girls, possessing leadership, scholarship, and character, progressed throughout the year as they grew to be one big family. Aside from setting up equipment, taking attendance, and instructing the classes, the girls also found time for fun in many social activities. Highlighting these were the weekend campout, which took place soon after the selection of new members, the building of the Homecoming float, and the farewell banquet which climaxed a truly happy year.
SENIOR SWIM CADETS

Euclid girls got in the swim with the fine assistance of the Swim Cadets. Possessing a Senior Life-Saving Certificate, these girls not only worked for the improvement of their own skills, but devoted much of their spare time so that others might further their swimming ability also. Through example and other teaching techniques, the Cadets took many strong strokes in the right direction.

Don't just stand there taking pictures, Bob!

Girls' Athletic Antics . . .

The Advisory Board of G.A.A. helped to plan such activities as basketball tournaments for sports-loving girls this past year. The girls chose their own individual teams and teachers acted as their coaches. Through such competition against each other, the girls actually became much better friends and learned many valuable lessons in sportsmanship which will aid them in the future. They learned how to become good losers as well as winners which is as important in sports as the actual playing.

Points for each activity they participated in helped many Euclid girls get their hard-earned E to be worn on sweaters. A total of 300 points was needed to get their letter and all the girls who earned them were proud to display them. They earned their points through participation in such sports as badminton and archery. Badminton tournaments were organized for the enjoyment of the girls as well as other spring sports such as four corner ball and ping pong. The award for shooting three bulls-eyes in a row in archery was a sundae. Many girls were seen practicing up on their aim and improving themselves through constant practice and hard work in this sport.

LETTERMAN’S CLUB

Representing the ideals of athletic prowess and sportsmanship were the lettermen. In recognition of their contributions to sports at E.H.S., they were privileged to wear the gold ‘E’ emblematic of their success.

Though one of the most recently organized groups of Euclid, the bowling team is one of which to be proud. Exhibiting skill and sportsmanship in every clash, they often returned home victorious over other teams in their league.

BOWLING TEAM
Student life and sports were a vital part of Euclid High School, for recreation kept our minds and bodies alert and interested. Their contribution to our school and to our own lives cannot be overlooked for we can easily see the importance of being well-rounded in our modern society. Depth of character came from our associations with the world, for what is our world except the people in it? We lived our social lives together, realizing the truth of strength in unity, and the strength of unity in truth. By working together in student groups and athletic teams, we saw the favorable effect of sharing our ups and our downs with one another. Through all these phases, we grew individually and added even more experience to our background, our background of...
LEARNING...
Learning—the prime reason not only for attending school, but for our actual existence on earth. Education at Euclid was not limited to knowledge absorbed in a classroom, but expanded to include our associations with the cultural departments and our student organizations. Through these phases of service and personal improvement, we recognized that the educational process itself was the strength behind our school. At Euclid High, we learned...
The seriousness of student council business was an awareness of every Euclid student as our governing body opened the year facing large problems which were new to E.H.S. With the opening of the social room, new policies had to be set with discretion and foresight. There was a much greater “all school” participation because of interest in council functions, not only social but otherwise. Every problem did not have an immediate solution, but yet the student body was cooperative and recognized the dedicated and sincere efforts of the council.

This organization was democracy in practice and action for the members who shared the most hectic year, with the most unpredictable circumstances yet. With the growth of Euclid High, it was most natural that the governing body of such a large educational establishment would, in turn, progress to an even more vital part of the school’s functions.
Another meeting in progress.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Throughout the year, the N.H.S. members accepted last year worked toward the long-awaited goal, the induction assembly. The suspense and drama of the ceremony were enhanced by the slow, stately reading of the scroll, the twinkling of the candles, and the suspicious glitter in the eyes of old members. It was a unique feeling to be in the position of bestowing this coveted honor on close friends and associates, and sharing the joy that could easily be remembered from last year. A solemn pride fell over all the old members during the repeating of the oath, as they recalled once more the wonderful memories of membership in the National Honor Society.
INTERNATIONAL QUILL AND SCROLL

An incentive above school spirit and devotion to duty, which urges publications’ staffs to ever greater effort is the highly coveted International Quill and Scroll membership. The students who achieve this honor are those who have high academic standing, have contributed much to the production of any of Euclid’s publications, and have been recommended for acceptance by their sponsor. At the annual banquet, the initiation ceremony is one way of recognizing and rewarding outstanding effort in a journalistic vein.
SURVEY EDITORS

SURVEY EDITORIAL STAFF

The Survey staff, gathering news, pounding on typewriters, reading galleys, making pasteups, running proofs, getting more ink on themselves than on paper, beating deadlines, found fresh views of the news to keep Euclid students up to date on the latest. From facts to feature, the editors and reporters turned out over 90,000 words of copy, designed with the student in mind. The first page was filled with photos and fact; the second, with feature, Snoop's scoops, Mart's Part; the third, with frolic, faculty, and fun; the fourth, with sports, slang, and action. The Editor-in-Chief and her colleagues ably handled all the problems that cropped up, from the temperamental press to the haunted floor.

Judy Zevnik, Editor-in-Chief.
SURVEY BUSINESS STAFF

Fourteen dedicated people, much hard work, and a lot of good fun . . . these are the elements which made up the 1959 Survey Business Staff. With their new office, staff members worked after school and on weekends selling ads for the paper and the football and basketball programs, and then sold these programs during the games. All this they did with pride and love that is rarely found. Despite all difficulties and distractions, they nevertheless found time to conduct a training clinic to prepare the 1960 staff for the same kind of organization; a truly fine one.

Communicating to the student . . .

Out of what seemed like organized chaos, the Euclidian Editorial Staff produced the yearbook—the finished product of a year of concentrated effort. The staff will never forget the photographers madly snapping candids "vertically please," or chasing about on the gridiron, the editors frantically attempting to identify the boy in the green plaid vest, straightening up the 'room,' writing creative copy, searching for the dummy or catching forty-winks in the dark while film was loaded, barely stopping to mourn the loss of a closet. These fourteen students combined work and fun, forgot individual feelings, and banded together to successfully hurdle all obstacles. Throughout the year, each learned many lessons which will remain with him during his entire life, helpful guides and influences. A part of each staff member goes with this yearbook and remains in the spirit of Euclid.

EUCLIDIAN BUSINESS STAFF

EUCLIDIAN MANAGERS

Each year the Euclidian Business Staff faces the problem of raising the money for the production of the yearbook. As the Eucladians get bigger and better, the funds must increase. The 1959 Euclidian, the largest in Euclid's history, was made possible through the efforts of this staff. The circulation department spent much time planning the campaign. Collecting and counting the money and keeping the records required more time and many sleepless nights, but the result was 2068 subscriptions. Perhaps even more time was spent selling ads. Only staff members were allowed to sell because of the secrecy of the contents of the Application section. Selling concessions at the home football games, and distributing the supplements were also major projects of the business staff. But that's not all, for the staff had many good times at parties and dinners and built many lasting friendships.
F.T.A.

Euclid can indeed be proud of its F.T.A. chapter, the largest and one of the most successful in the state. Here at Euclid are many clubs which provide students with opportunities to serve while learning some special skill. The Future Teachers of America accomplished both these purposes, for students interested in the teaching profession. This year, time was spent substituting and observing technique in the elementary and junior high schools, plus tutoring fellow students. The Farewell Banquet in May climaxed an active year and opened the door to college for these future teachers.

NATIONAL FORENSIC LEAGUE

Merit . . . honor . . . excellence . . . distinction . . . these are the marks of National Forensic League members. Those who competed in the various fields, from debate to original oratory, did so not for for the sake of trophies won or for individual recognition. Instead, their main purposes were to gain self-confidence, stage presence, and to polish the gestures, articulation, and voice inflection which were vital parts of their speaking techniques. Defeat in competition meant nothing to these Euclidites except an added valuable experience in their training. In every contest, each time they appeared before audiences of strangers, these N.F.L. members unknowingly created a favorable picture of student training at E.H.S.
THESPIANS

Many an ambitious actor or actress sites membership in the Thespian Troup as his goal at E.H.S. Diligent study and theater work is surpassed only by a sincere love for the stage itself for the Thespians, who attained membership by fulfilling the strict requirements. A distinctive group, therefore, these followers of the art displayed their exclusive ability through the production of fine dramatic presentations plus a superior Homecoming float. Certainly it can be said that Euclid’s Thespians were a fine example of Pope’s theory “Act well your part, there all the honor lies.”

OFFICERS

“Are you or are you not a Spirit?” was often demanded of a Spirit during his career with this unique organization at E.H.S. Soon he learned to assume the most innocent of manners and to slip quietly away to his duties. Among these were awarding “Panther of the Week,” and “Cub of the Month” to Euclidites who contributed outstandingly to their school. Our spirited Panthers took many leaps and bounds in the right direction this year, as could be seen by the spook-naming contest, Senior E.H.S. sweaters, and more frequent pep assemblies.

All wrapped up in spirit.
FUTURE NURSES CLUB

Probing more deeply the medical careers they wish to pursue, Euclid’s future nurses were addressed by student and registered nurses, dietitians, x-ray technicians, and other members of this profession of experts. With the wise lessons of Hippocrates and Florence Nightingale behind them, the girls anxiously searched for additional information through movies, tours of several hospitals and nursing homes, and discussions of various nursing schools. This active program was well-rounded by valuable practical experience assisting our nurse, Mrs. Wise.
WORLD AFFAIRS CLUB

Well aware of the shrinking of the world and the importance of the alert, well-informed citizen were members of Euclid’s World Affairs Club. Affiliated with the national organization, these students, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Stewart, gained broader horizons, a better outlook on the world, greater understanding of world problems, and experience in evaluating the important information published in influential periodicals.
EUCUYO CLUB

A taste of fineness in literature was the goal of the Eucuyo Staff, as they worked wisely and conscientiously on the production of Euclid's literary magazine. As they poured over short stories, essays, and poems entered by the students, staff members kept this high goal in mind. Reading, screening and the ultimate acceptance or rejection were all tuned to a high pitch of perfection. Editors of each respective class of literature guided the work till the final step which they had the privilege of making themselves, through their own merits. Cover design and color were chosen by the club members, much thought being given to originality and current trend, and their final product was one of which to be proud.

EUCUYO EDITORS

Creative Expression . . .

But it just doesn't rhyme!
Enthusiasm was tops this year as Wai Napolo sparked the year building the winning homecoming float. Desiring to make the Swim Show the best show ever, Wai Napolo spent much time practicing various skills and swim arrangements. “All work—and no play” certainly wasn’t the motto of this club, for as a club many good times were enjoyed at parties, picnics, and other club projects.
FOREMEN'S CLUB

A group of boys interested in making personnel and shop management their careers, Foremen's Club members served their school by aiding instructors and acting as foremen in shop classes each day. The boys visited local industries gaining practical experience in industrial arts by seeing first-hand the actual work being done by men whose positions they hope someday to fill. Assuming these responsibilities of leadership helped them with preparation for success in their chosen field as adults.

N. A. S. S.

One of the most exclusive groups at Euclid is the National Athletic Scholarship Society. The fact that the club's membership has increased from four to eighteen boys is truly a credit to the quality of the sportsman of E.H.S., since members must meet extremely high standards in the classroom as well as on the athletic field.

After being rated on the qualities of sportsmanship, sports ability, classroom achievement, and general conduct around the school, the few boys who rank very high are inducted into N.A.-S.S. in a quite impressive ceremony held at the end of the school year. Truly the student body and the community can be proud of these excellent sportsmen.
Elevator passes and legal rights to the darkroom were privileges many students longed for, but which were limited only to those fortunate enough to belong to the Movie Club or Camera Club. Movie Club members gave up much of their spare time so that Euclid students could get the full benefit of visual aids, both educational and entertaining. Study halls and lunch hours were willingly sacrificed, for these students enjoyed their work of serving E.H.S. With the profits from the noon movies, new equipment was bought and the old repaired for further use. A sudden, large step in a positive direction was taken by the Camera Club this year as they became much more active than they have been in the past. Offering their services to various organizations and taking pictures on their own at every possible chance, these masters of the shutter made great advances in serving their school and making known the name of Camera Club.
Whether the outlook was dreary or bright, each day was begun on a cheerful note with the pleasant "Good morning!" of our P.A. Announcers. Behind the scenes, the technicians made it possible for this greeting to be relayed to every homeroom, plus handling connections throughout each school day. Originality in these organizations ran high, and students never knew what gimmick might be used to get their attention each morning. But yet they could always be sure of what would follow: an accurate report of meetings to be held, sporting events, contests, drives, and general information of all types of interest. Reaching 2350 students was a difficult job, but our P.A. clubs handled it efficiently and with ease.

P.A. ANNOUNCERS

P.A. TECHNICIANS

KEY CLUB

The International Key Club is an organization sponsored by Kiwanis Clubs all over the world, organized to promote service to the school and the community. The Euclid Club has been active in arousing school spirit and in serving the community in many ways. Members were also given opportunities to investigate the business world through their visits to various industries and their several guest speakers. Through all their activities, the boys learned the valuable lesson of accepting the responsibilities of good community citizenship.

BOOKSTORE CLUB

"The bookstore has everything from cough drops to bookcovers—including pens, pencils, and paper." So Mr. Amster's comic announcements proclaimed each morning, in the campaign to acquaint Euclidites with that essential third floor niche—the school bookstore. With the motto "If you must frown, smile while doing it," the Retail Managers handled with tact and efficiency the steady flow of Euclid students purchasing school supplies. Always ready to serve, the bookstore proved a welcome solution for the problem of lost red pencil or required exam "bluebook." Euclid students will always be on their way to the door of the people with the better "mousetrap"—or bookstore.
STAGE CREW

Behind the scenes work is often looked upon as unfavorable and distasteful, but not in Euclid's drama department. Our stage crew found it interesting, challenging, and quite a bit of fun, too. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Jenkins, these students were responsible for lighting, curtains, scenery, props, and various other back stage duties. Realizing the seriousness of their close work with the art of drama, this crew nevertheless combined their responsibilities with fun and came out with the inevitable product of success.

AD CLUB

Tickets to be sold, hands to be stamped with the mysterious invisible stamp, and the Ad Club swings into action. Adding much to the spirit of the 1958-59 sports season, Panther fans could always rely on one strong cheer for victory, or a silent prayer for the same as they bought their tickets and passed through the gates. These hard-working girls had one thought in mind: “More people behind our team, a better chance for victory.” Few people realized the dedication that was with every member of the Ad Club, for they gave up their opportunities to see the games to do their jobs. This is a sign of one thing: true sacrificing spirit, and a love for E.H.S.
Organizations at E.H.S. provide the opportunity for specialization in one desired field or another, and specialization is necessary in order for efficiency. Broad-minded, enthusiastic students this year sought out that particular organization which best suited their abilities, interests, and desires. This accounted for a natural, wide variation of sponsored groups, including all types, from the physical to the intellectual. Those such as drama and music fell into the category of fine arts. Centering around the cultural aspects of student life at Euclid, these organizations strived for excellence as well as personal improvement. Natural, in-born ability was the prime factor with which each fine artist began, and through the supervision of trained instructors, he had the opportunity to grow indefinitely. It was an amazing sight to observe the dedication of these students as they studied and practiced, both alone and with the group.
Organizations Work Into Various Phases of Fine Arts . . .

Desire was theirs as they sought cultural development, fully realizing that the longest of journeys begins with a single step. Many of these important steps were taken at Euclid High as is evidenced by observing that a great number of our most outstanding organizations were those classed as fine arts.

Musical Mastery . . . Choral Mastery

EXECUTIVE BOARD

DIRECTOR AND ACCOMPANIST
Dick Wilson and Mr. Taylor
One of the most enthusiastic and spirited organizations at Euclid is the Choral Masters Choir. Made up of sixty-seven juniors and seniors— all carefully selected by Mr. Taylor from individual auditions last spring—this group has had an active year making numerous appearances both at school and in the community. During the fall, the Choral Masters were invited for the second year to perform at the Cleveland Community Chest Celebration Dinner at the Hotel Carter. Euclid students will remember, especially, the Thanksgiving and Christmas programs. At Christmas the Choral Masters united with the Euclid Choir, the Girls’ Glee Club, and the orchestra to present a gala concert of familiar favorites. They also performed at the traditional Christmas Concert at Tapeo. Performances at the two junior highs and at the Euclid Club House greatly added to their experience. In March, Euclid played host to the twenty-seventh annual Lake Erie League Choral Festival. To round out the year they competed in the choral contests.

For his good humor and determination to have a good choir, Mr. “T” is a man who will never be forgotten. His striving—not only for notes, but also for mood—was just one of his many attributes that made the Choral Masters the success they were.
High Fidelity Found in Choirs ...

In number, Euclid Choir was the largest of the vocal groups, and they boasted a spirit which could easily have been classed as equally "the greatest." A pride in his organization and an enthusiastic effort to show his capabilities caused each vocalist to work diligently at songs which at times appeared impossible to master. In their eyes, nothing insurmountable stood between them and a flawless performance. Under Mr. T's conscientious direction, they studied music varying from sacred to rock n' roll selections.

It was truly fine to have our Alumni back with us again.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Clad in their smart Perry Como sweaters and navy blue skirts, the Girls' Glee Club added a bright spot of color to musical assemblies, plus presenting exclusive programs to their own Sophomore Class. Each of these girls has a dream of someday belonging to either the Euclid Choir or Choral Masters. Both of these organizations will be bettered through the membership of vocalists who were boasted by this year's Girls' Glee Club.
The stirring strains of march music, the harmonies of concert melodies, the intricate formations at football games, the interpretation of written notes into living sound—these all are a part of the band's season. The school year opened with marching season, each half-time offering a chance for the creativeness of the marching band to have its fling. When the long-awaited uniforms failed to appear the musicians remained undaunted—their first show was "County Fair," with the band members resplendent in their straw hats, patched shirts and tattered trousers. Finally every band member was issued his cap, his jacket, his trousers, his overcoat—naval officer blue, trimmed in gold. Fitted with a plume for football performances, each musician cut a trim figure in his new uniform. Small spectators were even heard to comment, "Look at all those soldiers, Mommy!"

BAND SERGEANTS

After the curtain fell on marching season, it rose on the beginning of concert season... assemblies given at junior highs, the program with the choir, the antiphonal chorus, the preparation for contest, the solos and ensembles... a successful and active season. The weekly game of “Euclid Roulette” to decide those to prove their skill brought fear into the hearts of the unprepared, and provided glee for the lucky enough to be spectators.

Serving as officers in the company of musicians were the band sergeants, collecting fines, keeping order, guarding the jail, assuming responsibility in the absence of their director. The librarians were responsible for the order of the music, locating that lost 2nd trombone piece, searching frantically for the folder misplaced in a tuba.

Membership in the band was much more to these high school musicians than the mere playing of an instrument, it was spiritual, cultural, and social growth.

The strains of Euclid's Marching Band could be heard from the parking area on crisp fall mornings as these precision-stepping students rehearsed for an approaching game. An indispensable part of the half-time shows, they strived for perfection both for the entertainment of Euclidites, and for the improvement of their own talents. These stalwart members of the music department were proud to display their new and badly needed blue and gold uniforms, purchased through the generous donations of Euclid citizens.

They finally arrived!

PIT BAND

"By the playing of the Pit Band." This familiar phrase was heard every week after our assemblies as this talented group struck up a familiar march or the Panther pep song. Popular with E.H.S. students, this band instilled in them a spirited mood so they could further enjoy the assembly program, and at its conclusion dismissed them in the same inspiring manner. Whether it was a standard march or our beautiful Alma Mater, the Pit Band did a wonderful job of adding pep and special meaning to our weekly assemblies.

The Debonaires ace the Bands of Tomorrow Contest.

Ready for the downbeat.
This year the orchestra was composed of students who were interested in classical selections of music as opposed to those played by the other musical organizations of the school. They met 7 Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays to prepare for participating in such events as the annual Choral Christmas Concert when they accompanied the choirs in presenting the Christmas assembly to the student body and the Lake Erie League Orchestra Festival which was held at Cleveland Heights this year.

Every member of this organization gained valuable experience in orchestral accompaniment which will help many of them in their future musical careers.

HEAD MAJORETTES

MARCHING MAJORETTES

A high-stepping treat at any half-time show were Euclid's precision marching majorettes. Possessing exceptional ability to perform in a smooth, rhythmic style, the girls were armed with shining batons, fluffy plumes, trim outfits, and flashing smiles to beat any band. Their gracious mannerisms and gestures flowed well with the pattern of music as the girls sharply and precisely snapped to the beat in an orderly fashion.

Consistent practice and serious devotion to their work accounted for the fine impression that was always received when the talented majorettes marched toward a Euclid victory. The entire student body was proud of every performance by these spirit-raising girls of 1958-59.

Stage Magicians Weave Spell in "Glass Managerie"

"Candlelight is my favorite kind of light."
In The Glass Menagerie, Tennessee Williams has poignantly presented a young girl, Laura—a quiet, shy, withdrawn Laura—and her mother—a true busybody: domineering, and matchmaking—in a most human manner. Subtleness of character and plot development makes this a play difficult to produce with all the warmth and tenderness originally written into it.

However, in their sensitive, realistic portrayals, cast members displayed advantageously their outstanding native skills, as well as the excellence of technique—training received from Euclid’s drama coach, Mr. J. Jenkins.

"Mother calls it my glass menagerie."

"Why, you’re just a Christian mawtyr!"
But it worked so well in rehearsal.

Showboat Journey Displays Senior Talent

An extra-special tweet.

One of the high points of Euclid's assembly entertainment in 1959 was presented as Fred Lowery, famous whistler, held both the sophomores and the upperclassmen entranced with his popular rendition of the theme from "High and Mighty." Along with this favorite, which sold over a million records, Mr. Lowery performed a number of fascinating, and at times amazing, feats, such as imitating various bird calls, and whistling a duet with himself. Certainly Mr. Lowery will be remembered by the students of Euclid for his warm personality and enjoyable music.
A new privilege for the Seniors was readily taken advantage of this year as these Upperclassmen worked many long hours to present a fall class assembly that would be exemplary of their devotion to Euclid High. Summer planning and early school-year rehearsals made the presentation one that was admired and respected by all three classes, the faculty and the administration. Director Mr. Robuck and student director Don Tomino worked untiringly so that everyone could be proud of the efforts of the Seniors to further a more widely-spread and varied program of spirit in our school. Their production was also successful in creating a better feeling of unity within the class, so necessary to these students who shared their last year of high school life together.
The N.H.S. ceremony filled all students with pride.

The fine arts at Euclid were instruments of education in one of its highest forms. Our school recognized that not every process of learning centered in the classroom. Every experience is an education in itself, but one of the most difficult of lessons is found in the ability to utilize every opportunity to advance to its fullest extent. The faculty at E.H.S. taught some of their most valuable lessons in this way, and because of this, every organization, every phase of athletics, every department of the fine arts was another contribution to the student’s well-rounded education. Classes were, of course, where the major process of teaching took place, but much was also learned due to our teachers’ willingness to aid after class on their own time. Their eample to us was the best teacher, for they showed us by their own actions the most important lessons that life has to offer. Stauch witnesses of the value of dedicated teaching efforts, they seemed to have full faith in the famous statement: "Education is what you have left after you have lost everything that can possibly be taken away from you." Euclid High's finest art was the educational process found through classes and associations with our faculty.

Guidance in choice of colleges was gained through assemblies with the Deans.

physics, and language classes. This year, the enlarged and more fully equipped science department classrooms were, as in the past, the scene of complicated experiments and surprising results. Here were found the answers to the numerous questions concerning our environment. Science has familiarized the science-minded Euclid student with the how’s and why’s of life, and this challenging field most certainly should be classified as the keynote to a secure future. Languages enabled students to explore other worlds of culture—Spanish, French, German—and other ages—ancient Rome.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS
Training students for the future is the main function of any high school, and included in Euclid's program are the mechanical arts. In automotives, woodworking, mechanical drawing, and art classes, students are given an opportunity to develop an interest which may be a life work or simply a relaxing hobby for later years. In well-equipped shops and under the able direction of skilled instructors, students received what may be as important a part of their educations as were the more formally taught classes in Euclid's plan of preparation.

DRIVING CLASS

A common cry from the student taking driving education was: "Oh, I'll never learn to parallel park!" However, before they were through with driver's training, they had learned to parallel park, drive in all weather conditions, and change tires. They have also learned the traffic laws of Ohio and how to be safe, courteous drivers.

SWIMMING CLASS

Swimming skills and the fundamentals of life-saving and artificial respiration were taught by the members of the Swim Club. This course was optional, therefore assuring ambitious attitudes on the part of potential swimmers.

BUSINESS CLASS

Through a study of shorthand and bookkeeping, and a practice of typing and working on various office machines, the student enrolled in Euclid's Commercial Department was well-trained for a career of office work. In this course, students gained experience in working with electric typewriters, adding machines, comptors, and duplicating machines; all of which are found in the modern offices of today.

SOCIAL STUDIES CLASSES

GYM CLASS
Training—for almost any phase of work one could imagine—was combined to make student life at Euclid Senior High School more interesting. Mr. Rawlinson’s mock Congress faced all the national problems of the day with grim determination. Valuable lessons in sportsmanship were learned by all who participated in sports. Courses in algebra, geometry, advanced algebra, solid geometry, and trig were offered, as electives, to students interested in entering colleges and universities. Girls had a choice of cooking or sewing as training for becoming future homemakers. Everything from beginning sewing to advanced tailoring was taught in the modern-equipped sewing rooms. Everything from boiling water to preparing entire meals was taught in the modern kitchens of Euclid High. Through the variety of courses offered at Euclid, the student had an opportunity to be trained in many vocational fields, training that will help them throughout their entire lives.

COOKING CLASS
Nothing beats that good home cooking!
Keeping the complex records of the high school, preparing nutritious meals, and maintaining efficiency at the board office; these are the duties of the office staff, the cafeteria staff, and the Board of Pupil Personnel. Their work is definitely indispensable to the smooth operation of a high-quality school. Yet they often go unrecognized by the student body and the community. But their importance should not be under-rated, for their value is inestimable.
Maintain Efficiency

Supervising a quiet place, designed for study and research, the librarians contribute vastly to the worth of the high school. Their helpfulness and knowledge are appreciated and respected by every student and faculty member who has occasion to use the library.

Caring for our health is the nurse, and caring for our surroundings are the custodial and cleaning staffs. Surely every student knows at least a few of these dedicated people, and all of us are surely grateful for their services.

Helen Wise, R.N.
If I were asked to name one institution in America which most exemplified the traditions of American ideals, the high school would be the one. Education is the cornerstone of American democracy and the high school is an important part of that cornerstone. It is uniquely and distinctly American and known throughout the world.

Meryl R. Baumer

You have been graduated from Euclid Senior High, and your school days will bring different memories and thoughts to each of you.

You have had a wonderful opportunity to acquire knowledge and to learn skills and attitudes which will be necessary for a useful and productive life.

All of these important educational advantages were available to you together with opportunities to make friendships which will last a lifetime.

Good luck. May you use the opportunities afforded you.

Meryl R. Baumer
Director of Research
Euclid Senior High School—students, faculty, curriculum, equipment, books, building, tradition—is a stimulating environment in which to continue growing up.

Here you extend and deepen interests, discover your potential, find values and goals to direct your life. You experience good citizenship, value your heritage, learn to resolve conflicts in living. You appreciate rights and discover responsibilities. You develop a background to use in thinking. Here you become conversant with the learning tools’ full play, preparing yourself for a lifetime of continuing education. You learn to learn.

Lester E. Angene
Assistant Superintendent of Schools

This school year has perhaps been the most exciting and satisfying one for me since the dedication of this high school in 1949. With the opening of the new classrooms, laboratories, auto shop and social area, according to plans to meet the increased enrollment, we have facilities which enable us to offer a comprehensive program second to none. The total school curriculum offers the opportunity for each student to improve, both socially and academically, to the optimum of his abilities.

This year marks the end of the first decade in the history of Euclid Senior High School. Its graduates have already taken responsible positions in the adult world.

The present senior class has an academic achievement of which they can be justly proud. Congratulations to the class of 1959 and may your experiences here at Euclid Senior High School be extremely valuable to you in the challenging years ahead.

Clifford G. Owens
Principal
Euclid Senior High School is a good comprehensive high school which provides a variety of educational opportunities. Whether your plans are to go on to college or to enter immediately into the world of work, you have had an equal chance to secure the necessary knowledge and skills. You have been limited only by your ability and your desire to learn. I wish the greatest of success for each of you.
William A. Hunter
Assistant Principal

Euclid Senior High School is more than a building of brick, stone, and marble. To the citizens of Euclid it is a monument to their faith and confidence they have in the youth of this community.

To the students of the high school it is the source of shared educational experiences.

To the Seniors who are graduating, your years of schooling will help you meet the challenges of our technical society—you are to be commended for the Euclidian of 1959.
Robert B. Graham
Assistant Principal
There are many opportunities at Euclid High for self-expression and development of your particular talents, abilities, and personality. We hope we have helped you lay a foundation for a happy, successful life.

Seniors—you are about to leave us. We wish you success and happiness. If you have considered your studies of primary importance, you have gained much knowledge. In addition, you have developed social skills and learned to be of service to others. Best wishes to you and congratulations on the completion of the first step of life's journey.

Harriet M. Sheats
Dean of Girls

Again this year, Euclid schools proved their excellence by winning—for the third time, the Freedom Foundation's award for all-around excellence of school system.

Some students look upon education as a preparation for adult life, some students look upon education as an end unto itself, and still others look upon it as a necessary evil. We hope that the '59 graduating class will remember Euclid Senior High with pleasant memories and will never cease attempting to gain more knowledge.

Jerry L. Bergem
Dean of Boys

Especially significant as only three systems throughout the country are awarded this honor, it is one more proof of the high quality of the Euclid school system.

As students we are indeed proud of this award, and feel greatly privileged by being able to have some part in such an excellent system.

Learning was the major benefit of our lives at Euclid High this year. Besides individual lessons, which we each harbor as our own personal experiences, we each joined with our respective classes to share in those special factors which were particular to our own age group. To the Sophomores, this was a year of introduction to high school life, and exposure to all that this vast field includes. To the Juniors, it was a year of finding one's place, experiencing the contentment of not being the youngest students, and the glorious expectations of being Seniors. To the Seniors, it was a year of summing up a twelve-year career, climaxing projects of education, growth, and service. Being a part of Euclid High, all learned, for truly, "'Tis education forms the common mind." (Pope)

Now the Seniors leaving high school will go on to make use of what they've learned; to carry on their...
APPLICATION...
The friendship, recreation, and education gained at Euclid High School would be of no value without proper application. The true test of strength and worth lies in our usage of what we’ve acquired, and the extent to which we take fair advantage of our benefits. As high school graduates, we will go on to various careers; some will go on to college, others will be married, and still others will go into the armed forces, business, or industry. We all will apply...
Graduates go on to the college of their choice . . .

Graduation exercise completed, the class of 1959 will separate and each student go his individual way. A large percentage of the class will go on to further education in colleges over the entire country. There they will apply what was learned in senior high, gaining new experiences while doing so. With confidence, Euclid graduates can rest assured that their preparation for higher education was thorough. Individual aid from the deans and counselors, plus career week and its numerous advantages helped to build their desire and confidence. No matter which college each chooses, he will have the inner satisfaction of knowing that he is properly prepared for the new life he is undertaking.
The citizens of the state of Ohio are indeed fortunate in having such a vast and well-organized plan of advanced education. Their state universities and privately-owned colleges are not blind to the value of the individual's development, yet they offer him the freedom and personal responsibility which are essential to all young adults. From high school to college is a large and important step, but many Euclid students will make it wisely and discreetly.

to apply their knowledge and gain more

College night was an opportunity to hear speakers from various colleges.

Each year many Euclid students enroll at Ohio State University and the other state colleges.
It is not the desire of every graduate to go on to college. Many of the 59ers will immediately enter the fields of business and industry and will continue their personal growth there. Others will heed the urgent call of our country's Armed Forces to do their part in the complex situation which presently faces our world. Marriage will be the profession of many of our young women, for as housewives and mothers they will play a most essential part by maintaining the American home.

But no matter what the graduate finds before him after high school, he most certainly will strive to utilize the fine background gained at Euclid High; he will apply himself as an active, contributing citizen.

The Armed Forces promise a secure future.

Armed Forces, Marriage are the careers of others

Marriage may be in the future for Euclid High students.

What is Euclid High School? We've answered this question through the preceding pages, and we hold our presentation to be a true picture of what our school actually is. It is friendships, living companionships with fellow students; it is recreation, development of our bodies, emotions, and even our minds in a unique way. It is education, most important, of the classroom, but also entailing many other phases which even drift into the intangibles. And finally, it is an introduction to our application of the previous three elements to our every day lives as high school graduates. Some of us excelled in one field, others of us in another, but this accomplished the perfect balance which we will find to be the pattern of society in our future existence. Not everyone can be valedictorian, football captain, or class president, but this is as it was meant to be.
Each of us has his place, and our high school played a vital part in revealing it to us. Through its carefully planned programs in practically every imaginable field, we students had the opportunity to seek out our interests and consequently prove to ourselves and to others the intensity of this interest and ability. Limitations were wise and few, for our administrators were broad-minded in seeing that there certainly always is room for improvement, and so this became their path of endeavor. All of E.H.S. worked diligently and sincerely toward the goal of a near perfect high school, and with ten years behind it and one-hundred and fifty years behind its city, will continue to do so. For us as students during 1958-59, Euclid Senior High was a lesson in life, and this is true education, in its ripest and richest form.
This year the Euclidian was one thing; a major educational process centered on technical advancement. The goal in the minds of all was a better yearbook for Euclid High, better in creation, construction, and production. The most integral part of the 1959 Euclidian was my staff, both as a group and as individuals. Without their unselfish devotion and wise insight, the difficulties we faced would not have been overcome, my shortcomings as an Editor-in-Chief would not have been outweighed, and our yearbook would not be in the reader's hands now.

Although our job centered on the creation and partial production of this book, many other duties involving a number of other dedicated individuals were fulfilled outside our immediate staff. Our first steps toward success could not have been taken without the continual aid of our Assistant Principal, Mr. Bruce Graham and our Deans, Mr. Jerry Bergem and Mrs. Harriet Sheats. Their assistance was willingly given and most vital to our work as students. Interest and concern was evident also in our Principal, Mr. Clifford Owens, as it was in our Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Wellington G. Fordyce who was very co-operative and helpful at all times. Much credit and gratitude is extended to Rai com Studios for their sincere efforts to do all in their power so that Euclid High School could have a yearbook of which to be proud. Their experienced advice and assistance with our pictures oftentimes saved a great amount of trouble and worry, and for this we thank Mr. M. Levine, Mr. Wm. Rainin, and Mr. J. Gon
gos. Picture trouble occasionally arose on the spur of the moment, but we always had the assurance that we could turn to Mr. Donald Rinkes and the Camera Club for immediate help. Of course we were continually grateful for the time and assistance of our correspondent, Mr. George P. Scott, from the Wm. J. Keller Inc., printers of our book, and Mr. David Mack representing the Mueller Art Cover Company. Admiration is also extended to Mr. James McCampbell for his desire in his sponsorship of the editorial staff. It was the combination of all these efforts which promised the completion of a fine Euclidian.

Entering much more into the actual production of the book than the staffs of previous years, the 1959 Business Staff, headed by Karen Raasch, Manager, worked diligently and often without recognition so that our financial condition was satisfactory. Excellent guidance came from their sponsor, Mr. Clayton George, who created a fine spirit which was evident within each staff member. Salesmanship and tact on the part of this group boosted our subscription drive plus our student interest to an all-time high.

My deepest thanks to all the above mentioned peo ples plus all others who contributed to our book in any way, and my hopes that the experiences of Euclidian work were beneficial and lasting. The 1959 Yearbook is exemplary of the physical efforts of many people and our hopes as a staff are that it fulfills it's one main purpose: to stand as a symbol of the 1959 school year, its joys, its sorrows, its victories and its defeats, and to act as a constant reminder of lessons learned and experiences gained. May our book be a witness of life at Euclid Senior High School as it really is.

Very sincerely,
Nancy Beran
Editor-in-Chief
Though the termination of the 1959 school year approached, nevertheless activities at Euclid ceased to slacken, but rather increased in number and importance. Now, more than at any other time throughout the year, friendships, recreation, and learning grew to reach a high pitch as anticipation of the conclusion of the year rose. For the Seniors especially, there was a unique realization of what awaited them. Underclassmen were equally anxious for the future, and so all three classes worked closely and earnestly to make the last few weeks together the very best. We continued our active life at Euclid High...
Our ladies proved that good cheer knows no age limit!

Looks like someone could use some coaching!

FAT PANTHER GAME

Cries of "Come on Daugherty, put it in!" resounded from the gym as the Fat Panthers, our faculty netters, prepared to take on their opponents in their annual basketball game. Led on by the cheering student body and the excellent, if somewhat rusty cheerleaders, this year’s Fat Panthers again upset the Vast Vikings of St. Josephs.

ALL-SCHOOL PARTY

Cameras flashed as photographers from various organizations obtained pictures of the fun-filled activities available at the annual All School Party. Dancing was held in the E-Room while the gym and pool were open for participation in sports. For those who enjoy a less strenuous form of entertainment a movie was shown in the auditorium. All E.H.S. students appreciated this opportunity to forget their identity as individual class members and to unite as one student body for a night of fun.
FRIENDSHIP FORMAL

It was a winter wonderland outside, but glowing warmth filled the E-Room as happy couples danced, talked, and gazed dreamily into the fire. The Friendship Formal was an isle of loveliness with South Pacific enchantment inspired by the effective music of Harry Hershey's Band.

Parties, Dances, Games For Fun

SPRING SPORTS DANCE

A warm and wonderful evening can best describe the Spring Sports Dance of 1959. After dancing for a few hours, the fun was climaxed by the crowning of the King and Queen and the honoring of their court.

Queen Kay reigned in beauty.

1959 SWIM SHOW

Hard benches and heat were soon forgotten as Wai Napolo proudly presented Lullabye of Broadway, one of the most spectacular water shows Euclid has ever seen. Enthusiastic crowds were on hand each of the three nights to watch the expert swimmers perform routines in brightly colored costumes. Miss Urchek and

Mr. Donaldson, hard-working sponsors of the Swim Club were rewarded for their efforts by gifts and an unexpected dip in the pool. Joni Holzmer, Student Director, highlighted the evening's entertainment as Senior soloist. With her graceful interpretation of September Song, she brought the performance to a beautiful conclusion.

1959 BIG SHOW

Hushed whispers of “Act II on stage” and “Don’t forget that pink spot” said in voices filled with rushed excitement demonstrated the goal of perfection being sought by the cast and crew of the annual Big Show. Sam Taylor and Dale Harper, Directors, were well aware that the results of their efforts of the past weeks were about to be tested for the first time. The last button had been sewn on, the make-up crew had done its job, and every excited student and teacher connected with this production went onstage and made the Big Show of 1959 the most spectacular one yet.
SENIOR PROM

The epitome of Euclid's social functions—the Senior Prom—was finally upon us, and the thrill was deep and stirring. The theme, the decorations, and the planned program were perfect, and promised a wonderful night that would certainly be slow to be forgotten. A unique sense of pride was experienced by all attending; pride in being a student of such a fine school, for few others are fortunate enough to have function of this proportion. Dancing, the breakfast, movies, the picnic, plus countless home pictures added to the excitement of simply attending with a certain someone who seemed to assure a wonderful time. Completely exhausted after this week-end, couples departed to live over through memory the grandest affair of a high school career.

A glorious evening began as soon as couples entered the E-Room.

No one wanted to bid this evening "Sayonara".
Kenny and Jackie were a perfect Couple of the Year.

"Aw, go on, we do so have a bid."

Picnicking on Sunday found many couples in the swim.
There were stars in many eyes this night.

Couples gathered in the patio to watch Euclid's own Old Faithful.

JUNIOR PROM.

The sound of music came lazily from the E-Room to add to the mystic enchantment of the hazy evening air. After weeks of planning and anticipation, the night of the Junior Prom had finally arrived. Dreamy-eyed couples danced on a stairway to the stars, their thoughts on the beauty of the moment at hand.

The tired feet gang.

"Out!" was a cry seldom heard by Euclid's baseball team this year as the men swung into an action-packed season filled with thrills and success. More students backing was evident this year as the entire student body went to bat for our team in hopes of a victorious season. As always, the fellas turned in a fine record of baseball achievement.
Unusual strength and control is necessary to master the shot put.

TRACK TEAM

Always on the right track, Euclid's pacers had a season packed with amazing feats of accomplishment. Record after record was smashed as our men ran up new times and new championships. Composed of exceptionally talented individuals, the team worked well together for the good of Euclid's entire squad. Few students will ever forget the sports award assembly and the surprise of the numerous trophies which our school proudly claimed. The Coach and his crew should indeed be honored for this winning season which will be tough to beat.

Track Paces to District, State

Another Euclid athlete beats the clock.

The high jump requires skill and agility.
The distinction of being named Panther of the Week is an honor which denotes deep pride on the part of the recipient. This coveted award is presented only to a select few who have been exceptionally outstanding in the contributions of time and service to Euclid High. A small reward for effort, the Panther is a significant symbol to the entire student body and a priceless treasure to each person who is fortunate enough to be thus honored and thanked. Many homes boast this shiny ceramic figure with its bright gold lettering and they do so with pride. Second only to the Panther is the Cub of the Month which is presented according to similar standards to an outstanding Sophomore. Both awards are a constant reminder of the unselfish efforts of many fine students.

CUBS OF THE MONTH

PANTHERS OF THE WEEK
A career in the Armed Forces was brought to the attention of many young ladies.

Career week proved informative to all students.

CAREER WEEK

Few schools have the distinct privilege of enjoying the fine advantages contained in a program such as Euclid’s Career Week. Grateful students are indebted to the Deans for their planning of this annual function which is very valuable to each of them in their search for a lifetime vocation.

SENIOR N.H.S.

A gold N.H.S. pin has the same meaning to the proud student who receives one as a school letter has to an athlete. It stands as a symbol of hard work and of the pride of acceptance into this National Honorary Society.

Euclid's artistical traits become obvious.

PLAYNIGHT

Under the direction of Mr. Jack Jenkins, The Torch-bearers, The Girl Who Lost Her Shadow, and the unusual Aztec scene combined comedy, symbolic drama, and ritualistic dancing to present a most unique show for this year's Playnight.

SPRING PLAY

Rebel Without a Cause, the stirring story of a young man's search for himself was chosen by Director Leonard Roebuck to be this year's Spring Play. The very different and effective use of spotlights in scene changes added to the mood of the play and to the fine performances of a well chosen cast.

STUDENT COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Bands parading through the halls, signs over every drinking fountain, vigorous campaigners passing out free pencils, bubble gum, book covers and other articles were all a part of student life for several days at Euclid High. This was the week of the Student Council elections, with nominees and their untiring campaign committees striving to turn out endless numbers of signs and posters. Along with the fun came the realization that with the final balloting, students would be choosing the next leaders of the governing body of their student life.

"Aisle walk for Futurites!"

STUDENT GOVERNMENT DAY

Energetic campaigning, surprises, and unusual results characterized Euclid's 1959 Student Government Day elections. In addition to the Futurites and Forty-niners, the accepted parties for many years, a new party called Political Justice entered the contest and captured the voters' interest. Richard Skiljan, Political Justice candidate for Mayor very adequately filled the post aided by one Forty-niner and seven Futurite officials.
APPLICATION

Plenty of good cheer in the Senior men!

SENIOR BANQUET

"We are the Seniors, and we are fine, we are the class of '59" was the cry that echoed from the Charter House one rainy spring evening. The Senior Banquet officially opened the festivities for Euclid's graduating class. After a luscious dinner followed by dancing and the reading of the class poem, the Seniors headed for various parties and continued celebrating throughout the night. 562 bleary-eyed students struggled to classes the following day—tired, but happy with the realization of all the glorious moments which awaited them as 1959 Seniors.

BACCALAUREATE

The religious aspects of graduation were present and appreciated.

Master of Ceremonies, Jerry Eisman, welcomed students and guests to the Banquet.

Randy Hurlburt, Valedictorian of 1959 has been an active member of the Euclid student body since his junior year, having attended Glenbrook High prior to his career here. He has maintained his straight A average, worked tirelessly on the Student Council Executive Board; and has served as an editor of the Eucuyo, treasurer of the Spirits Club, and trumpeter in the Band, besides working as co-chairman of the United Appeal Drive. During the fall season, Randy spent much of his time playing with the tennis team, and his participation later on with the swimming team earned him membership in the Letterman's Club. He also has the honor of being the only Junior in Euclid's history to be a member of the National Honor Society because of induction in his Sophomore year. A National Merit finalist, he has received a scholarship to Princeton where he plans to study either engineering or physics.

The Height of Achievement

SALUTATORIAN
CAROL CRUM

As Salutatorian of the Class of 1959, Carol Crum has displayed leadership and personality as well as intelligence. Enrolled in a variety of activities, she has managed to be one of the busiest students at Euclid High, while still maintaining her exceptionally high scholastic average. Her interests being many and varied, she has been an active member of Thespians, the P.A. Club, the National Forensic League, the Future Teachers of America, and treasurer of the Swim Club. Because of her school spirit and achievement, Carol was also selected as a member of the National Honor Society and the Spirits Club. As a result of her superior academic work, Carol, a finalist in the National Merit tests, has received scholarships amounting to $3,850. With a diplomatic career in mind, Carol will continue her education at Oberlin College where she intends to major in languages.
The impressiveness of the mass group was inspiring to all.

Mr. Owens must have had a terrible case of writer's cramp.

Mr. Reynolds certainly was getting shook!
COMMENCEMENT

A time for joy and a time for tears, a time for deep thought on past memories, a time for sincere appreciation and hearty anticipation, a time for terminating and yet commencing, a time for pride and quiet humility, a time for solitude but also sharing, a time for goodbyes, a time for dreaming of past and future, a time to pause for rededication, a time for thanks through words, thoughts, and actions, a time we'll treasure through the years—this was our graduation as the Euclid Senior High Class of 1959.

Dick's performance brought new life to everyone's appreciation of fine music.

Pride and a Promising Future

I knew in the beginning there would be an end.

The thrilling pride of terminating twelve long years.
In Memory of Dr. Wellington G. Fordyce

Tragedy lived in the hearts and minds of many people this Spring, for the death of Dr. Fordyce was a deep shock to all. It is often thought that students are unaware of the functions of the administrative body of our educational system, and yet nothing could be further from the truth. The students feel a concern for this program and its directors, and because of this we were in full realization of the loss suffered through the death of this great educator.

It is easy to recognize the contributions of Dr. Fordyce, and we will always be grateful for his efforts and accomplishments. But yet our attraction to and admiration of this man was not and is not limited to this lone factor. Dr. Fordyce was highly respected among the student body in a manner which was quite personal to many individuals. His avid interest in us was not simply in our curriculum and activities, but expanded to include our welfare as citizens and as individuals. His efforts were effective in our growth and development as people, people with living souls.

The intangibles are often unrecognized, and even when noticed are shunned upon as relatively unimportant. As growing young men and women, we learned that this was a tragic mistake, that more influence should be placed upon items outside the materialistic realm. Dr. Fordyce always seemed to share this way of thinking and, in his own way, urged us to continue this belief so as to fully utilize the intangibles and realize how essential they are to our well-being.

As youngsters, our voice is yet weak and insignificant in the modern rushing trend of life. But we are learning, through experience and through faith, and we are indebted to those who allow us the opportunity to thus increase our personal education. Such was our former Superintendent of Schools, who taught us that education was not just books, rulers, and blackboards.

We express our deepest sorrow and sympathy to his family, extend to them our thanks and express our pride of having been associated with this fine man. Though he has passed on, we feel that for what he stood can never die.

The end was finally upon us. All left Euclid High once more. Underclassmen left with high hopes and dreams of the future and their coming days at E.H.S. But for the Seniors, this was the last time they would leave their own “halls of ivy”. Opposite extremes of emotion were obvious.
each personal to the individual.
Commencement it was, and now these Alumni are already on their way in graduate life.
But always: “The memories of our friendships here will lift our hearts to Euclid High.”
